Forex transactions are a type of Margin Trading and involve You taking a position as to what You consider the price of one currency will be against the price of another currency in the future (a “currency pair”). For each currency pair We will quote a bid price, which is the price We will pay You in the secondary currency for the position in the base currency, and an offer price, which is the price You will pay Us in the secondary currency for the position in the base currency. The difference between the bid price and the offer price is known as the spread.
- c. You can take a view on the price of the base currency increasing by going long, or You can take a view on the price of the base currency decreasing by going short.

18. NETTING

- a. If there are payments due from both Us to You and You to Us then each party's obligations to make payments to the other may be settled by netting, and if the aggregate amount payable by one party exceeds the aggregate amount payable by the other then the party with the larger amount payable may pay the excess and the obligations of each party may be satisfied.
- b. If the amounts owed are not in the same currency then We may conduct currency conversion at such reasonable rate of exchange as We may select and shall be entitled to add a mark-up to the exchange rate as set out in our Charges Schedule.

APPENDIX B:

SUMMARY OF CONFLICTS OF INTEREST POLICY

Introduction

This policy covers conflicts that may arise between SVS or an employee of the company and its clients, as well as between one client and another. SVS's senior management is responsible for ensuring that the systems, controls and procedures in place are robust and adequate to identify and manage a conflict as and when it arises. These procedures are regularly reviewed by the Compliance Department in order to ensure that they are up to date, reflect best practice and that all relevant activities and regulations are covered.

Guarding against conflicts of interest

Various systems and procedures have been put in place to minimise any potential for conflicts of interest. This list, although not exhaustive, includes:

- personal account detailing requirements within the firm
- information barriers preventing the flow of information between the group companies
- a gifts and inducements policy
- segregation of duties where a potential conflict of interest may arise if duties are carried out by the same individual
- a public disclosure policy ("whistleblowing") for the firm Identification of conflicts

In the course of identifying potential conflicts of interest, SVS will take into account whether SVS or a staff member or another client:

- is likely to make a financial gain, or avoid a loss, at the expense of the client;
- has an interest in the outcome of a service provided to the client or of a transaction carried out on behalf of the client, which is distinct from the client's interest in that outcome;
- has a financial or other incentive to favour the interests of another client or group of clients over the interests of the client;
- carries on the same business as the client; or
- receives or will receive from a person other than the client an inducement in relation to a service provided to the client, in the form of monies, goods or services, other than the standard commission or fee for that service.

Management of conflicts

SVS operates several policies for managing conflicts of interest, including an independence policy and, where appropriate, information barriers. Where We are aware of a conflict We will manage the conflict in line with our policy and procedures. We will disclose a conflict to the relevant clients where it is not practicable for Us to manage it effectively or We otherwise think disclosure is necessary or desirable. In some cases We may decide not to proceed with a transaction which has given rise to a conflict of interest.

APPENDIX D:

RISK WARNINGS AND INFORMATION ABOUT MARGIN TRADING

FOREX & MARGIN TRADING RISK WARNINGS

The risk of loss in dealing in Margin Trading can be substantial.

We protect You from negative equity so that You will not lose more than the sum of your deposits.

You should not deal in Margin Trading unless You understand the nature of the contract You are entering into and the extent of Your exposure to risk. You should also be satisfied that the contract is suitable for You in the light of Your circumstances and financial position.

The leverage that is available in Margin Trading means that a small margin can lead to large losses or gains, and also means that a small movement in price can lead to a much large movement in the value of Your position and could result in losses substantially exceeding any initial margin.

The risk of loss in dealing in Margin Trading can be substantial and If the market moves against Your position, You may be called upon to deposit a substantial amount of additional margin funds, on short notice, in order to maintain Your position. If You do not provide the required funds within the time required by Us, Your position may be liquidated at a loss.

There may be costs associated with financing positions held overnight and these costs should be considered in advance of deciding whether to commence Margin Trading.

In light of the above You should consider carefully whether or not this product is suitable for You in light of Your circumstances and financial position, and if in any doubt please seek professional advice.

INFORMATION

In respect of every Transaction made between Us We shall act as principal with you.

Transactions in forex involve You taking a position with regard to what You consider the price of one currency will be against the price of another currency in the future. In order to do this You will trade in a currency pair with us, for example Euro/US Dollar (EUR/USD) or US Dollar/Japanese Yen (USD/JPY).

Example of Margin Trading in Forex

Currency pairings are expressed as two codes usually separated by a division symbol (e.g. GBP/USD), the first representing the “base currency” and the other the “secondary currency”. The price quoted is the value of the secondary currency expressed in terms of one unit of the base currency. For example GBP/USD = 2.0045 denotes that one unit of sterling (the base currency) can be exchanged for 2.0045 US dollars (the secondary currency). The prices that We quote for each currency pair are normally labelled as the “Bid Price” and the “Offer Price”.

The Bid Price is the price that We will pay You in the secondary currency for the position in the base currency. The Offer Price is the price You will pay Us in the secondary currency for the position in the base currency. The Bid Price will always be less than the Offer Price. The difference between the Bid and the Offer price is known as the “Spread”. We make a profit from the spread. In general the wider the Spread the greater our profit.

You can take a view on the price of the base currency increasing by “Going Long” or You can take a view on the price of the base currency decreasing by “Going Short”. For example, if You consider that the price of Sterling will increase against the price of the US Dollar You will decide to take a position with Us where You will Go Long (or buy) GBP/USD. If, by contrast, You consider that the price of Sterling will drop against the price of the US Dollar You will decide to take a position with Us whereby You Go Short or sell GBP/USD.

If You were Going Long, the opening price of the currency pair would be fixed at our Offer Price. If our Bid Price at the end of the contract is greater than our Offer Price at the commencement of the contract then, subject to the deduction of applicable charges, You will receive a sum calculated by multiplying the number of units of the base currency by the difference between the opening Offer Price and the closing Bid Price of the currency pair. However, if the Bid Price for the currency pair at the end of the contract does not exceed the Offer Price for the currency pair at the commencement of the contract You will be required to pay Us a sum calculated by multiplying the number of units of the base currency by the difference between the opening Offer Price and the closing Bid Price of the currency pair. Regardless of how the price of the currency pair moves You will also be required to pay Us applicable interest charges, ticket charges (which You will be notified about separately), and financing charges

If however You were Going Short, the opening price of the currency pair would be fixed at our Bid Price. If the Offer Price of the currency pair at the end of the contract is less than the Bid Price at the commencement of the contract then, subject to the deduction of applicable charges, You will receive a sum calculated by multiplying the number of units of the base currency by the difference between the opening Bid Price and the closing Offer Price of the currency pair. However, if the Offer Price for the currency pair at the end of the contract exceeds the Bid Price for the currency pair at the commencement of the contract You will be required to pay Us a sum calculated by multiplying the number of units of the base currency by the difference between the opening Bid Price and the closing Offer Price of the currency pair.

Again, regardless of how the price of the currency pair moves You will also be required to pay Us applicable interest charges, ticket charges (which You will be notified about separately), and financing charges.

Transactions in forex involve the obligation to settle a position at a future date. At 17:00 New York time (which is the standard forex market value- date change time) each day, We will settle all spot transactions by closing the trade at the current market rate and reopening it for the following day's spot date at a rate that will reflect the interest rate differential.

Whenever any transaction is entered into to close out any existing transaction, then the obligations of each of Us under both sets of transactions shall automatically and immediately be terminated upon entering into the second transaction, except for any settlement difference payment due in respect of such closed out transactions.

By Margin Trading with Us You will be required to provide a certain amount of margin and We will then leverage that margin. This exposes You to a high degree of risk. Leverage is the amount, expressed as a multiple, by which the notional amount traded exceeds the margin required to trade.

We will advise You of the amount of margin and the amount of leverage that We will require on a transaction by transaction basis. If the price of the currency pair moves against Your interest You may be called upon to deposit additional margin at short notice and We may close out Your position without notice if We do not receive the additional margin from you.

You may be able to agree with Us to limit Your losses while Margin Trading by using stop loss, limit loss or take profit orders. These facilities may help You limit Your exposure to Us and We strongly recommend that You consider the use of such facilities.

New forex prices are quoted by Us between 17.01 on Sunday and 21.59 on Friday (New York time) and prices for other Margin Trading instruments in accordance with their individual underlying market

Positions in forex which are rolled over from one trading day to the next will incur financing based upon the interest rate differentials between the currencies in the currency pair.

Positions in other Margin Trading instruments which are rolled from one trading day to the next will incur financing based upon mark-up of the relevant London Interbank Offered Rate.

You pay interest on the currency that You are short on and You receive interest in the currency that You are long on. For example, if You are long on the GBP/USD pair You will receive interest on Sterling and You will pay interest on the US Dollar. If Sterling has a higher interest rate than the US Dollar then You will receive a net interest payment but if Sterling has a lower interest rate than the US Dollar then You will pay out a net interest amount. The financing price offered to You will differ depending on whether You are Going Long or Going Short. We may make a profit from the difference in the financing price offered to persons Going Long and the financing price offered to persons Going Short.
